Updated 30 June 2021. The best thing you can teach students about almost any language point is how to ask and answer the kinds of questions related to that language which people really ask each other.However, doing just this more than a couple of times can get a bit dull and mean that the questions don’t really stick in students’ minds.

In the face of this predicament, accounts of love that understand love to be an attitude towards value that is intermediate between appraisal and bestowal, between recognizing already existing value and creating that value (see Section 4.3) might seem to offer a way out. For once we reject the thought that the value of our beloveds must be ...
